Employer: Integrated Astromechanics Corp.

Employee: [Your name here]

JOB TITLE

Hauler

JOB DESCRIPTION

Your job is to complete courier contracts issued by the corporation or otherwise transport officially designated goods. Depending on the class of item hauled, you will either receive the reward associated with the respective courier contract or, at the end of each calendar week, a publicly announced share of the money saved by the corporation buying the applicable items below the reference prices published on our forums times the number of hauls of that class you completed divided by the total number of hauls of that class for the corporation that week, taking into account the salaries for our Traders and the corporate money spent on moving that class via public courier contracts. Please reference our forums for detailed hauling procedures.

Hauling for individual corporation members such as our Industrialists is not governed by this agreement but subject to private negotiation.
